

Payoffs.
A Good Government Reason
to turn thumbs down
on the congestion tax.

Read this comment by blogger Larry Littlefield, a frequent poster to other blogs:

1. I have come to look at things a little differently. If so many payoffs are to be demanded in exchange for congestion pricing, it is better for them to vote it down.

That, rather than the end, could be just the beginning.

Comment by Larry Littlefield — March 4, 2008 @ 12:58 pm | Link

He responded to “Congestion Pricing Endgame Begins,” in StreetsBlog, March 4, 2008.