

This taxer wants ten bucks to start.

When will they just stop it?

See this “Editorial viewpoint” in The Brooklyn Eagle, published online 03-27-2008

Op-Ed

A $10 Fee Can Save the Day For Congestion Pricing

By Carolyn Konheim

Partner, Ketcham and Konheim

BROOKLYN — Almost everything has been thought of to make congestion pricing work — except answers to practical problems raised by legislators in Albany and the City Council.

Ironically, the best way to solve them is to increase the proposed $8 congestion pricing fee to enter Manhattan Central Business District, the CBD, to $10.

See:

http://www.brooklyneagle.com/categories/category.php?category_id=10&id=19493